

Director of Information Technology

Summit Learning must invest in high-quality secure information technology (IT). We're looking for a seasoned and highly-flexible leader who is excited to not just set the strategy and direction for our IT team, but wants an environment where they can do the hands on work. Ultimately this role is responsible for ensuring that everyone at Summit Learning has the right technology and support to do their best work.

This is a full time role reporting to the Chief Operating Officer of Summit Learning. The Director of IT will need to collaborate closely with a team in Redwood City, CA, but the position can be based anywhere in the country. The Director of IT will help plan and execute the launch of the new nonprofit and must be in place prior to June 1.

Who We Are:

Summit Learning is our approach to teaching and learning. Created by Summit Public Schools over the course of 15 years, it is based on established learning science and is the foundation on which Summit's successful schools were built, with our schools consistently ranking among the best in the nation.

Today, schools across the country are implementing Summit Learning in their own context, thanks to the Summit Learning Program - one of the country's leading personalized learning programs. More than 380 schools in 38 states and the District of Columbia are participating in the program where they receive free access to professional development, ongoing coaching and a rigorous curriculum for grades 4-12.

Are you looking for the opportunity to lead change? Do you want to help reimagine what schools should be? We put students in the driver's seat and empower them with the skills and habits they need to be successful in college and life. We need diverse, driven, and dynamic talent to join our growing team to help realize our educational vision.

What You'll Do:

- Develop a strategy to proactively identify and address areas of the organization where technology could play a key role in accelerating our efforts and unlocking employee productivity.
- Play a hands on technical role in building and buying modern corporate infrastructure systems (collaboration, device management, identity, networking, etc) to support our
